CEMP-C

Subject: USACE Award for Construction Management Excellence

Applicability: DIRECTIVE

1. PURPOSE. This Construction Bulletin (CB) updates and reissues CB No. 93-28, dated 14 December 1993, USACE Award For Construction Management Excellence and follows the general guidance of Engineer Regulation (ER) 672-1-18, dated 1 March 1995, Incentive Awards.
2. The USACE Construction Management Excellence (CME) award criteria and nomination format are enclosed (enclosures 1 and 2, respectively). The names and nomination packages of Major Subordinate Command (MSC), including Huntsville Engineering Center and Transatlantic Programs Center, CME awardees are to be provided to CEMP-C by 2 January of each year. This is a change from previous direction which required that names be provided by 31 January of each year.
3. Created in 1993 by Construction Division, HQUSACE, this award recognizes district or field office construction personnel whose outstanding contribution to Military or Civil Works construction management (including environmental remediation) during the previous calendar year was recognized as having the greatest positive impact in each MSC. This award was developed to provide a means for recognizing, at the national level, those outstanding construction personnel, engineers or technicians, whose duties and responsibilities do not include construction quality assurance, whose grade may exceed GS-12, or who are located in a district rather than a project, resident, or area office. This award validates Corps policy that everyone in the construction function, whether at "ground zero" on the construction site or in a district office miles or states away, is a valued stakeholder in the success of each construction project. While the focus of our Hard Hat of the Year award is on construction quality management, the CME award focuses on the other equally important elements of full service construction management which could include, but are not limited to, the following:

The Chief, Construction Division, USACE will make a 35mm slide presentation, highlighting each recipient, using the slides which the MSC provides with the nomination package. Winning this award should result in local recognition by the districts and MSC's with appropriate monetary award by the awardee's organization.
